Personal statement:

I'm a designer and developer from Berlin currently working for 5app where I'm helping to make corporate e-learning better for learners and businesses alike.

I'm a generalist straddling the line between design and development, focusing on both product design and UI implementation. I deeply care abour building useful products that respect users and help them achieve their goal. I'm interested in modern frontend technology, component-based design systems and design tools that go beyond static images to capture real design intent.
